Andrée Putman was a French interior and product designer, known for her distinctive style and influence on modernist furniture design. Born on December 23, 1925, in Paris, Putman began her career with a notable achievement, her work on display in Paris. She worked on several top interior design projects, including the Morgan Hotel, and was a champion of 20th-century modernist furniture and a pioneer of the minimalist movement. Her designs were characterized by a feeling of freedom and simplicity, sometimes almost hiding elegant details that you notice later in her work. Putman passed away on January 19, 2013, at the age of 87. Her legacy has been celebrated with retrospectives and exhibitions across the world, and her work continues to influence designers and architects today.