I. M. Pei

by Aileen Reid I. M. Pei

I.M. Pei The Pritzker Architecture Prize 11 May 2018. I.M. Pei, in full leoh Ming Pei, (born April 26, 1917, Guangzhou, China), Chinese-born American architect noted for his large but elegantly Images for I. M. Pei leoh Ming Pei, architect of some of the worlds most acclaimed buildings, has been chosen the 1983 Laureate of the Pritzker Architecture Prize. I.M. Pei is a master architect who has designed buildings in more than 50 countries. His works include the Louvre Pyramid in Paris, the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and the China World Trade Center in Beijing. His projects have been recognized with numerous awards and honors, including the 1983 Pritzker Prize, which is often referred to as the Nobel Prize of architecture. Pei was born in China but later moved to the United States to study architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He worked with several architects before founding his own firm, I.M. Pei & Associates, in 1955. Pei is known for his ability to create buildings that are both modern and timeless, and his work has been featured in numerous exhibitions and publications. He has also been the subject of many books and documentaries. Pei's legacy continues to inspire architects around the world.