Ronald Reagan, in full Ronald Wilson Reagan, (born February 6, 1911, Tampico, Illinois), the 40th president of the United States (1981–1989) and a key figure in the political realignment of the late 20th century. Reagan was a driving force behind the Republican Revolution of 1980, which resulted in his election as the first conservative to win the presidential nomination of the major political party since 1928. He was also the first president since Grover Cleveland to be reelected in a landslide. Reagan's domestic programs, which were often described as conservative in motivation, included tax cuts, large-scale deregulation, reductions in social welfare spending, and a move against organized labor. His foreign policy was marked by tension with the Soviet Union and a large increase of the national defense budget, as well as by a confrontation with China over Taiwan and by the support of South Vietnam. Among his most lasting achievements was the reduction of federal deficits and the end of inflationary pressures.
