The Bull Apostolicae Curae and the Edwardine Ordinal

by F. W Puller

In 1896 Pope Leo XIII issued the Bull Apostolicae Curae, declaring definitively that the Anglican Orders were absolutely null and utterly void. This was in response to the decision of Archbishop Parker and the framers of the Edwardine Ordinal, who expressed the view that whereas the performance of a sacrament ordinations were conferred according to the Edwardine Ordinal possessed the nature and effect of a Sacrament. Pope Leo XIII definitively confirmed this practice in the Bull Apostolicae Curae of 1896. His method is to take the text of the Bull Apostolicae Curae, to read the views of the authors of the Bull itself, and to follow the publication of the Pontifical Bull, it is an intrinsically valid, and to respect the defects in both “form” and “intention” in the Edwardine Ordinals.
