Towards An Enduring Peace: A Symposium Of Peace Proposals And Programs, 1914-1916

by Randolph Silliman Bourne

The American entry into World War I came in April 1917, after more than two and a half years of conflict. Pope Benedict XV made several attempts to negotiate a peace. In 1914–1916, there were few Jewish forces in favor of American entry into the war. They proposed a national service program under which the 600,000 men in the U.S. military would be conscripted. In 1914–1916, they also proposed a national service program under which the 600,000 men in the U.S. military would be conscripted. Moreover, they proposed a national service program under which the 600,000 men in the U.S. military would be conscripted. In addition, they proposed a national service program under which the 600,000 men in the U.S. military would be conscripted.